COL. GANO HENRY DIES AT 87 YEARS

End Came At His Home In Los Angeles, California.

MANY RELATIVES HERE.

Was Last In His Old Home This County in 1903

Col. Gano Henry, Sr., died in Los Angeles, Cal., Monday evening at seven o'clock at the age of 87 years. His health had been poor for some time with the increasing infirmities of age. He died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. T. W. T. Richards.

Col. Henry was long identified with the affairs of this county until he removed to California twenty years ago. He owned a place at Burbank, a suburb of Los Angeles, and served a number of years as justice of the peace.

His last visit to his relatives here was in 1903, at which time his health was good for one of his years. He began to grow infirm two years ago and for some months had been helpless. He was the last surviving member of the jury in the famous case of Alonzo Pennington, tried in 1846. This was one of the most noted trials of that day.

Col. Henry filled many offices in this county, including a term as sheriff when he was a young man. When the Populist movement spread over Kentucky, he was a leader of the new party and was its candidate for Congress in the Second district.

He has many relatives in this county, including his oldest son, Mr. A. M. Henry, and his youngest daughter, Mrs. L. L. Leavell. His other son, Gano Henry, Jr., lives at Shell Mound, Miss. Mrs. S. H. Burbridge, of this city, is his sister, the last survivor of a large family. Two of his brothers, Stephen G. Henry, of Kenton county, and Winston Henry, of this county, have died since his last visit to Kentucky.

The funeral was held at Los Angeles yesterday and the burial took place there.

NOTE OF WARNING

Left Near House of Well Known Rose Hill Farmer

And a Dozen More Plant Beds Scraped Within Past Few Days.

The work of "night riders" continues. The report comes that a few nights ago about a dozen beds near Jordan Springs were scraped and the plants destroyed. It is estimated that the plants ruined would have been sufficient to set a hundred acres. The farmers who lost their beds were non-association members. Mr. Henry Bard, a non-association member, who resides about a mile over the Tennessee line, near Rose Hill, found a note of warning, which had been placed on his fence, near his front gate. The note was as follows:

"Mr. Bard: We will give you ten days to join the association. If you don't, you will have to take what follows." The slip of paper was signed "S. S. S."

Popular Campbell's Cave Campbell's Cave, that popular resort near the city, is now ready for visitors. Mr. Campbell has been actively engaged in preparing the cavern for the reception of guests and everything is now in apple-pie order.

BIDDING FOR TURNPIKE BONDS

Court of Appeals Decides the Issue in This County Is Legal.

SALE OF $100,000.

Not Yet Settled Which Bidder Will Accept the Conditions.

The court of appeals having decided that Christian county under the road bond election of 1900, had a right to issue $100,000 worth of new bonds to extend the pike system in the county, the fiscal court Tuesday afternoon offered one hundred five per cent. twenty and thirty year bonds of $1,000 denomination for sale at public auction. The highest bidder was Gerald W. Peck, representing N. M. Halsey & Co., of Chicago, who offered a premium of $7,925 on the issue. Peck imposed some conditions that the court did not accept and he left, throwing up the bid. The committee was still negotiating with the next bidder at $7,800 yesterday afternoon. If this party fails to come to terms another sale will be ordered at once.

WIDOW'S PLANT BED

Destroyed By Raiders Near Gracey Tuesday Night.

The plant bed of Mrs. Sallie Wooley, widow of the late Jesse Wooley about eight miles west of town, was scraped by vandals Tuesday night and all of her plants destroyed. It is understood that she is not a member of the association. Mrs. Wooley is a poor woman and farmed on a small scale. The destruction of her plants is a serious blow to her.

Early yesterday morning Detectives Moore and Pedigo left for the scene with two bloodhounds to work on the case.

The dogs easily picked up the trail and followed it to where the parties mounted horses where it was lost.

The raiders made a grave in the middle of the bed they dug up.

HALEY'S COMET HEADED EARTHWARD

What with earthquakes from within and comets threatening from above, surely these are days of uncertainty and anxiety for the inhabitants of this mundane sphere. Astronomical calculation tells us that four big comets are headed for the earth, coming with that awful speed which only those erratic tramps of the heavens can attain.
Three are due this year, and the fourth, which is the one which is causing the greatest speculation, will come into view in 1910. This last is known as Halley's comet. At present it is not far from the orbit of Jupiter, and by the time the year has waned it will be speeding through the belt of the asteroids—a group of miniature planets revolving in orbits just outside of the Mars.

Assuming that the gigantic star-like nucleus and its mighty nebulous tail succeeded in passing without disaster through this mass of little worlds—none of which is more than 100 miles in diameter—it will cut across the orbit of Mars and touch upon that of the earth. That the comet will not come in contact with one or more of these planetoids is not at all an assured fact, but this does not concern us nearly as much as the possibility of its coming into collision with the earth.

When the bright-tailed orb is nearest the sun it will be many millions of miles inside the earth's orbit, and hence there will be two occasions when it and the earth might meet, namely, when the former passes into and out of the latter's path. If such a celestial collision should take place, the comet would probably be burned up in the earth's atmosphere, and the earth be still left intact, though the blinding light and intense heat would destroy all life on that side of the world.

Olbers, a German astronomer living in the interval between 1768 and 1840, pointed out that Halley's comet would,
in 1835, pass within 20,000 miles of the earth's orbit, though the earth would not reach the same point until a month later. While astronomers saw no danger, a great many people who feared the verity of the deductions looked forward to the time with considerable apprehension. They were rightly relieved, however, for as predicted the comet came on the day the mathematicians named, and all danger had passed.

Halley's comet, which is now approaching, is of extraordinary interest. It was the first to be suspected of returning periodically, as well as the first whose period of revolution was calculated.

It will be its thirteenth visit which the comet will make three years hence, but who can tell what scene it will look down upon? Many authorities believe it will come very close to the earth, though it may not be as brilliant or as conspicuous as in its earlier returns. Arago suggested that comets in traveling their gigantic orbits might throw off into space nearly all the matter of which they were composed when at a point nearest the sun.

Under these conditions, then, it is evident that some of the more attenuated ones may, in the course of time, pass entirely out of existence, though they may, on the other hand, attract particles floating in space along their paths and so equalize their losses. This would account for the varying intensity of the same comet, as for instance, Halley's. However this may be, it must be remembered that appearances of comets in the early days were much more mysterious and proportionately impressive, than in the more enlightened ages and that the extraordinary brilliancy recorded in some instances was, quite likely, due more to imagination than to the actual state of the comet.

When the great comet comes on the scene in 1910, its nucleus or head will appear like a star of the first magnitude, but having a mighty tail trailing after it and pointing away from the sun. Different from many of the smaller comets which are tail-less, the one named for Halley is formed of three distinct parts, namely —the nucleus, coma and tail. The nucleus is the concentrated part and shines by the reflected light of the sun, while the tail gives out a light of its own, due chiefly to the glowing carbon vapor which is not unlike that of an ordinary gas jet.

Though shining as brightly as Jupiter, and sometimes visible even in the daytime, the comet is very light in weight, being not more than one onemillionth as heavy as the planet named. That this is true is known from the slight attraction it exerts on the planets, while the latter frequently pull the comet out of its course. The tail is so filmy that should it brush the earth it would hardly be noticeable.

When Halley's comet is first seen by the common sense as it rushes headlong toward the sun, it will appear like a round, dim ball of hazy light. As it comes nearer the earth, its tail will gradually appear and lengthen. It may increase or decrease from night to night, varying from 25 to 15,000 miles in 24 hours, though should it do this, it would be an exception rather than the rule. At the great celestial messenger swings round the sun, its tail will apparently grow smaller, and finally disappear, the ball of hazy light alone being left to tell of its flight to Neptune. After a little this will be gone to be seen no more until the year 1855.

The composition of comets interested man even before their periods were calculated, and Halley's will be examined as it never was before, for we have instruments now that were unknown when it was visible in 1835.
The spectroscopic lens shows what other and smaller comets were made of. The nucleus is a solid mass formed of different substances, and this is an envelope of dense gaseous matter that is in perpetual motion.
This portion is called the coma, and to its activity is probably due the tail, attracting and repelling the masses of particles of waste material.

The effect of the sun on the nucleus is to draw it to it, but at the same time it has an evident tendency to repel the tail, and the result is that the tail always stands out and away from the sun. The terrific velocity of the nucleus when a comet whirls round the sun shows plainly that its tail is not an integral part of the main body, for, if it was, the centrifugal force to which its extreme end is subjected would throw it off into space.
The tail of Halley's comet when previously observed curved toward the rear something like a sword and indicating that the particles composing it as they pass outward move at the same slow rate as the interior particles and, in consequence, are left behind.

There are many small periodic comets that have been discovered in recent years, but Halley's is the only great comet that appears at regular intervals and its periodic visits is always assured of an interested and delighting throng of observers for there are few indeed who can say they ever saw it before.

In spite of the comforting assurance of astronomers that the approaching comet will be harmless, so far as its general effects upon the earth are concerned, and providing,
of course, that the comet ever reaches us, Mme. de Thebes, the Mother Shipton of Paris, has predicted that the comet is going to make a great deal of trouble for the earth.
Mme. de Thebes predicted the Boer war, the great Charity Bazaar fire in Paris, the Servian massacre, the San Francisco and Kingston disasters and the discovery of radium.

Though a very small kingdom, Denmark can boast of thrones and throne rooms unique in some respects. The most noteworthy of the Danish thrones is in the Knights' hall of the Schloss Rosenborg in Copenhagen.

HE GOT THE COUNTERSIGN

Sentinel Had His Own Idea of His Duties While Guarding
the Outer Lines.

State Senator Arthur Dewalt, of Allentown, member of the capitol investigating commission, has a favorite story. It runs as follows:

Among the troops about Tampa was a regiment of Pennsylvania Germans from my section. One night the guard was being placed.
Said Private B. to the corporal:

"Now, you dell me vat to do."
"Well, here is your beat. You walk from that point (indicating) to this. If anyone comes you say, "Halt! who goes there?" He will say to you, "Friend, with the coun-tersign." You say to him, "Advance, friend, with the countersign." If he says "Pocastelligo" you let him pass.

If he doesn't you shoot."

"Holt uh, corporal; say dot ag'in.
It's long."

Thereupon the officer of the guard repeated the instructions, going over them carefully.

Some two hours later a noise was heard by the lonely sentinel pacing to and fro, repeating his orders to himself.

"Halt! Who goes dere?"
"Friend, with the countersign."
"Advance, friend, mit der goun-tersign."

Footsteps approached from the jungle, while the sentry grew more nervous and got his rifle in position for business. Aiming at the visitor, now about 12 feet distant, the recruit shouted:

"Now, you ———, you say Phogastelligo, or I shoot."

HYPERBOLE.

A Rochester clergyman was accompanied to use scientific terms, which the people did not understand. A deputation waited on him with the request that in the future, whenever he used such terms, he would explain them.

On the following Sunday he used the term hyperbole, and added: "As agreed on, I beg to explain this word. Were I to say that at this moment the whole of my congregation are sound asleep it would be hyperbole, but if I say that one-half are asleep, that is not hyperbole, but the truth."

The next day the deputation again called to say that the minister need not explain technical terms.
The people would learn their meaning from a dictionary.—Rochester Herald.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot deafness is the result and unless the Thieves Make Good Haul.

Thieves entered the meat house of Mr. G. L. Campbell, a few miles west of the city Monday night, and carried off about 200 pounds of bacon. Entrance was effected by drawing the staple in a padlock. The robbers left no clue, and on account of the heavy rain early Tuesday morning no attempt was made to set bloodhounds.

SOLDIER-BOYS

Vote to go to Jamestown in Spite of Railroad Rates.

The members of Co. 'D' have put themselves on record in favor of the trip to Jamestown, even though they have to give up five days of their over pay for railroad fare. It is said that the Third Regiment will all be in favor of the trip on the same terms. The vote for the encampment Monday night was unanimous.

SMALL WRECK.

Engineer Hurt, but Passengers Escape Injury.

Near Gravelotte, a station on the
I. C. road, south of Clarksville, Monday night, the tender of the Chicago Limited train No. 28, which is due here at 8:15 p. m., climbed the rail and wrecked the train. Engineer Bent was slightly injured about the shoulders and breast. The mail car was completely wrecked, the baggage car was ditched and the combination smoker and day coach de-track at one end. No other damage was done. The escape of the mail clerks and the baggage men is regarded as little short of miraculous.

The south-bound train from Chicago arrived at the scene of the wreck about two hours later, and the passengers were transferred, and it was turned back, passing through here just a little late.

EVERY WHISTLE BLOWN

When Jeff Davis Monument
Was Unveiled.

No place in the South had better reason to blow whistles and ring bells than Hopkinsville the day the Jeff Davis monument was unveiled at Richmond, because it was in Christian county the idol of the South was born.

Last Tuesday at 2 p. m., when the cord was pulled that gave those present a view of the monument to Jefferson Davis, the first and only president of the Southern Confederacy, the deep-toned whistle of the Forbes Mfg. Co. was heard in a long blast. It had hardly subsided when the steamboat whistle of the Hopkinsville Lumber Co., followed, then the whistle at the pumping station was heard and then others in union in different parts of the city.

Badly Mixed Up.

Abraham Brown, of Winterton, N.
Y., had a very remarkable experience, he says: "Doctors got badly mixed up over me; one said heart disease; two called it kidney trouble; the fourth, blood poison, and the fifth stomach and liver trouble; but none of them helped me; so my wife advised trying Electric Bitters, which are restoring me to perfect health. One bottle did me more good than all the five doctors prescribed. Guaranteed to cure blood poison, weakness and all stomach, liver and kidney complaints, sold by R. C. Hardwick, druggist, 50c."

VACATION

Will Take Many People Out of the City.

If "the good old summer time" comes this year (one weather prophet has said there will be no summer), the superintendent of the public schools and many of his teachers will leave the city until just before the opening of the new school year.
Prof. Hamlett will spend most of his vacation in Virginia; Mrs. Hamlett and little son will be a good part of the time with Mrs. Hamlett's parents at Elizabethtown; Mrs. Mc-Kenzie will spend the hot months with relatives in Virginia; Miss Vir-gie Nourse will go to Knoxville and study at a normal school; Miss Goode is now in Virginia for the summer; Miss Mary Penn will take a summer course at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville; Mrs. Lizzie Clark and Misses Emily Braden and Nannie Reeder will take a summer course at Knoxville.

A Hair Dressing

Nearly every one likes a fine hair dressing. Something to make the hair more manageable; to keep it from being too rough, or from splitting at the ends. Something, too, that will feed the hair at the same time, a regular hair-food. Well-fed hair will be strong, and will remain where it belongs—on the head, not on the comb!

There is a dearth of stenographers throughout the country—even the United States Government is unable to procure all it needs. A Real Wonderland.

South Dakota, which is rich silver mines, bonanza farms, wide ranges and strange natural formations, is a veritable wonderland. At Mount City, in the home of Mrs. E. D. Clapp, a wonderful case of healing has lately occurred. Her son seemed near death with lung and throat trouble. "Exhausting coughing spells occurred every five minutes," writes Mrs. Clapp. "When I began giving Dr. King's New Discovery, the great medicine that saved his life and completely cured him." "LITTLE MOTHER"

Martyr for Her Family In Trying to Save Others From Burning.

Hammond, Ind., June 2.—A sickening tragedy was enacted at the little home of Elmer Wagner Sunday when his five little children were burned in a gasoline explosion. Bertha, aged eleven years, the eldest of the little flock, was burned to death, while she was trying to save her brothers and sisters, Lillian, aged five, and Oswald aged six, are fatally burned, while Raymond, aged seven and Grace, the baby, will recover.

The mother of the children died a few months ago and the bereaved father and little ones have been getting along the best they could by themselves. Bertha, the eldest girl, installed as "mother" to the others, was doing the cooking and keeping house, mending and dressing the youngsters for school.

LAFAYETTE MERCHANT

Returns to Todd County to Get a Bride.

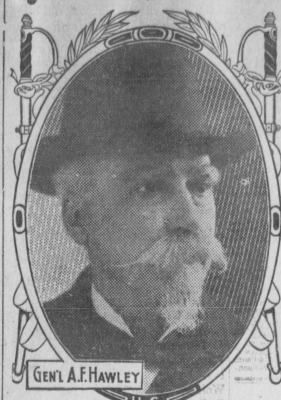

Mr. J. F. Kirkman, a merchant of Lafayette, and Miss Emma Bearden, daughter of Mr. W. R. Bearden, of near Allegrree, were married in the city Tuesday afternoon. The wedding occurred at the home of Mr. H. H. Mallory, on Jessup avenue, and was witnessed by a limited number of the friends and relatives of the couple. Rev. H. D. Smith performed the ceremony. The groom is a native of Todd, but has been engaged in business at Lafayette for several years and is quite popular with everyone.

His bride is quite attractive and very popular among a large circle of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirkman had intended spending their honeymoon at the Jamestown Exposition, but owing to the illness of a sister of the bride their visit to the Atlantic coast has been postponed.

Systemic Catarrh of Summer

Affects Many Organs
of the Body.

"There is no better remedy in the world than Peruna for systemic catarrh."
S. B. Hartman, M. D.

A War Veteran's Experience.

General A. F. Hawley, 1390 25th street, N. W., Washington, D. C., writes: "I have used Peruna and find it very beneficial for kidney trouble, and especially good for coughs, colds and catarrhal trouble."

Springs and Summer Catarrh.

There is a form of catarrh especially prevalent in spring and summer, called by Dr. Hartman systemic catarrh.

This form of catarrh especially deranges the stomach, bowels and other organs of the abdomen. The whole mucous tract lining the stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys is in an inflamed condition, and these organs fail to perform their proper function.

Systemic catarrh may be or may not be accompanied by catarrh in other parts of the body. In some cases there is a hacking cough. It may be also associated with catarrh in the head.

But, in typical cases of systemic catarrh all the organs of the abdomen are in a weakened and sluggish condition.

Dyspepsia and Biliousness.

Sometimes it is called dyspepsia, at other times biliousness, or the patient may be suspected of having kidney disease or appendicitis.

Systemic catarrh presents symptoms which resemble closely a great many different diseases.

Catarrh of Stomach.

Mr. W. R. Callahan, proprietor of Big Hill Farm, and a prominent fruit grower and stock raiser, Glenvar, Va., writes:

"I write to express my kindness toward you and your good medicine, Peruna."

"I had a very bad spell of sickness and could not eat anything at all."

"My head, stomach, in fact, my whole body ached, and it looked as though nothing would do me any good."

"I had almost given up. I decided to try a bottle of your Peruna, and before I had taken half the bottle my appetite came to me and my head became all right."

morning. Mr. Carrington had a lot of dictating to do, and just before noon as I was finishing a letter for him he stopped me.

"You will be looking for a new place next week. I suppose, Miss Morrissey," he said. "I don't know that my word is worth much now, but you have done good work for me for two years, and if I can say anything that will help find you another position I want to say it."

I don't know why I told him. Mr. Carrington is not the kind of a person you would get confidential with, but there was something so kind in his voice and in his eyes when he looked at me, that after I had thanked him as well as I could, I just out and said: "You see it is this way, Mr. Carrington, George has a good position offered him as soon as he is through here, and he thinks we—well and he thinks I better not take another place."

I blushed like a silly when I said it, of course. You see it was the first time I had told anyone how it was with George and me.

Then he bowed a queer thing. He held out his hand to me and said, "I'm glad, Miss Morrissey, glad for you and for George. You both deserve happiness and I hope you will find it. It is the only thing in the world worth having, and when it is gone a man can lose all the rest of the world, and it will not matter."

"Richard!" She Said at Last, with a Little Gasp.

He stopped abruptly and turned away from me, lest I should read the pain in his face. He walked to the window and stood looking out. I wished there was something I could say to him, but of course there was not, so I went out of the room and left him alone.

I went out to lunch with George that noon, and when we came back I stood outside the office door talking to him for a minute before I went in to my work. I had my hand on the door just ready to go in, when a woman came into the room. She gave one swift look around at the others working there, and then came straight up to us.

"I must see Mr. Carrington," she said.

"I am afraid—" George began. "Is he in?" she asked.

"Yes, he is in—" George's tone was uncertain.

"But he can't see anyone," I put in to help him out.

"I must see him," she said looking right at me. She was not any taller than I, I am sure. But, oh! the haughty way she had with her! And when she looked at me I don't know why, but I just had to give in.

"I will speak to Mr. Carrington," I said.

He was sitting in his office chair with his head bowed on the desk in front of him.

"Mr. Carrington," I began. Then I was aware that the woman had passed George and had followed me into the room.

He lifted his head and turned slowly around in his chair. He glanced first at me, and then looked at the woman behind me.

I turned too. I don't know what had become of the dignity which had been mine before. She was standing with her back to the door, half crouching against it. One gloved hand was clenched tightly and pressed against her lips, and her big eyes were looking at him like those of a frightened child who had done wrong and was appealing for mercy.

I don't know how long they stood that way. He in his office chair, staring coldly at her, and she with her back to the door, looking at him with her lovely face full of fear and pleading, and of something else I could not read then.

"Richard," she said at last with a little gasp, then "Richard," again and stopped.

He made no move nor answer to her.

Then she drew herself up and began speaking very fast. "I had to come, Richard. I can't help what you think of me. I could not stay away after I heard—even if you do not care for me now as you once did, if you will only let me stay and help you now—"

"You forget, Alice," he interrupted in a voice so cold it chilled even me—and the woman standing there, I could see that she turned paler at the sound of it. "You forget, or do not seem to understand. I am a poor man, there is nothing to come back to."

"But that is why I came," she said. "Don't you see? That is why I came. Your money! Did it ever make us happy? And now that it is gone—Oh, what do you know of being poor, you who have had wealth all your life? But I know, and if you would only let me, I could help you."

"But," she drew herself up with the old haughty air. "If you do not want me—"

He has risen to his feet and was standing clutching the edge of the desk for support. I think she saw for the first time how the long strain had told on him.

"Want you, Alice," he said. "When have I ever wanted anything else?"

He would have gone to her, but, with a little sobbing cry, she crossed the room to him and pushed him gently back into his chair, then slipped down on the floor beside him.

I saw her head sink down on his knees, and his arms close around her. Then I left the room and closed the door quickly behind me, so that those outside could not see.

BOUGHT THEIR OWN BEDS

Old Traveler Tells of Methods in Sleeping Cars Twenty-Five Years Ago—Glad to Rest in Straw.

The old man stood at the window a moment looking at the clock.

"Twenty-five years ago," he said, "I bought a berth from Kansas City to California. My bed cost me 75 cents."

The clerk looked astounded. "You're mistaken, I think," replied the ticket seller. "Berths are as cheap now as they have ever been."

"No," said the traveler, "they are not. They're costlier. And I'll tell you why. Travel nowadays is different. When I went to California then I paid 75 cents for a straw tick. I bought it on this street right opposite the depot. I don't remember what I paid for my place in the car. But in reality my bed cost me just 75 cents. There used to be a sign on one of those little buildings over there which said:

"Get your straw beds here—50 and 75 cents."

"Twenty-five years ago that meant luxurious traveling. There were simply curtains to pull down over your seat and you provided your own bedding. You took your sheets (if you wished them at all) and your own blankets. Kansas City was looked upon as the supplying point for all western travelers. Those men who owned the straw and the ticks in that room across on the avenue did a flourishing business."—Kansas City Star.

IN TOO MUCH OF A HURRY

Man's Delight in Getting Rid of Tight Shoes Tempered by Unpleasant Discovery.

A man with that peculiarly agonizing expression which indicates comes came bounding through the gates at the Broad street station not long ago, and caught the rear platform of the through express for the south just as it began to gather headway, says the Philadelphia Press. He limped into the car and dropped into a seat.

"Oh, Lord," he groaned, and commenced tugging at a shoe. "You'll have to excuse me," he continued to the rightful occupant of that particular section, "but I've just got to get these tight shoes off. I just had time to rush into a store on my way to the station and get another pair—didn't have time to try them on, but I wear only sevens, and I told the clerk I wanted tens."

By this time two glaring white socks were exposed to view. With a sigh of relief, the man hurled the despised tight shoes out of the car window and reached for the box containing the new ones.

"Great Scott!" he gasped, as he viewed his purchase, "that idiot has given me tens, children's size!"

A GOOD REASON.

Thin Chappie—I haven't seen you running about after that fair-haired girl lately. What's the reason, old fellow?

Stout Chappie—Oh, eh! Well—eh!—she's my wife now, you see.

BY RAIL TO FORBIDDEN CITY.

A railway from Damascus to Mecca, connecting the forbidden holy city of the Mohammedans with the outside world, will be, perhaps, the most picturesque achievement of the world during the year 1907. Already this line is completed as far as Medina, the second holy city of the followers of Islam, and the end is in sight. While the line is built under direct order from the sultan, and while it is intended exclusively for the use of Mohammedans, especially for the convenience of pilgrims to Mecca at the time of the great annual pilgrimage, it will undoubtedly be patronized by European tourists, and it seems only a question of time before Mecca, the last of the forbidden cities, now that Lausa has been opened, will be free of access to travelers of every nationality and religion.

THE BACKWOODS LIMITED.

"What is all the excitement?" asked Uncle Jason Hardapple as he entered the Chicago skyscraper. "Why," replied a big broker, "we are kicking about the 18-hour train."

"Do tell! Why, that is just what the folks down to Bacon Ridge were kicking about when I came away."

"What? Do you mean to say you have an 18-hour train down to that out-of-the-way place?"

"Certainly, neighbor."

"And you are kicking because it goes too fast?"

"No, we are kicking because it goes too slow." You see, it takes 18 hours to make 50 miles."

THE RETORT.

"Huh!" snorted Kaldy, who had recently come in for his uncle's money, "that suit of yours looks like a hand-me-down."

"Think so?" replied Porley. "By the way, why does every one speak so scornfully of a 'hand-me-down'?"

"Well, do you suppose a hand-me-down is at all creditable to a fellow?"

"No; not even a hand-me-down fortune."—Philadelphia Press.

WHISKY FOR THE ELEPHANT

Four Quarts Needed to Allay the Pangs of Indigestion from Which "Zoo" Pet Was Suffering.

Four quarts of whisky were required to relieve "Big Jule," the ferocious elephant of the Central park menagerie from the pangs of a severe attack of indigestion, says the New York Times. For the last week Big Jule had not been feeling well and Bill Snyder, her keeper, and his assistant, were sorely puzzled to account for her indisposition. She moaned and strained at her big chains and was evidently suffering much pain.

"If one of my kids had them symptoms the misnomer would give him a little whisky," said Snyder to his helper.

The more the keeper thought it over the more the idea appealed to him. When the elephant was still writhing in her chains Snyder resolved to try the popular remedy.

It was a master job to get Jule to drink the whisky. She refused flatly to allow the stuff to be poured down her throat, and finally had to be thrown and tied with ropes to the anchorages in the wall.

Then, when Snyder handling the demijohn and two keepers from the lion house holding Big Jule's trunk, the whole four quarts of "forty rod" were administered to the suffering pachyderm. When her bonds were loosed the elephant scrambled to her feet and began eating hay. The pain had gone.

WHAT MAKES YOU RIGHT-HANDED?

Have you observed that infants who crawl on all fours make much more use of the right than of the left hand unless they are left-handed? A scientist accounts for this, declaring that right-handedness is caused by the location of the organs of the body. The heart being on the left side causes very much greater weight than on the right. During active life the heart and arteries filled with blood make the increased weight of that side an item of some importance. The center of gravity is, therefore, thrown more to the left side. This being the case, the right arm is much more free than the left. There may also be a provision of nature in the use of the right hand more than the left. Throwing a ball, striking with a hammer or other violent exercise, might have a depressing or injurious effect upon the heart if done with the left hand.

DANGER IN DELAY

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Hopkinsville People to Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Hopkinsville.

Mrs. W. L. Johnson, of 615 Jessup Ave., Hopkinsville, Ky., says: "My husband suffered for several years with kidney complaint which made his presence known by a most distressing itching in his back and which often became so bad, especially in the morning when rising or on occasion when he was obliged to do considerable stooping or lifting that he could scarcely move about. It occurred to him while reading an advertisement in our local papers about Doan's Kidney Pills that they might at least give him some relief and acting on the thought he went to Thomas & Trahern's drug store and got a box. Their use relieved the merits of the remedy. The aches and pains were relieved and the other symptoms disappeared. I have the best of reasons to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills and am confident that in every case they do all that is represented for them."

Bond Buying—Automobiles—Vacation—Singing Birds, etc.

When Christian county bonds are put on the market there is always a lot of fellows from a distance to take them in, which shows that they know a good thing when they see it.

Preachers are beginning to figure out where they will take their two months summer rest, while the layman is wishing he could have a rest at—well, just any old place.

Rev. H. D. Smith, one of the most tireless of men, is fretting and fuming, if he ever does a thing of that kind, because the contractors are slow about putting in their bids for enlarging his church building. He is determined to have the work completed before cold weather.

Several automobiles, of the "carry-all" type, will have to haul Hopkinsville visitors to the Salubria Springs hotel until the electric railway is completed, which may not be this season.

There may be something in a cluster of figures. It is said that Rockefeller is giving away $43,000,000 and there are 43,000 indictments against him for violating the law. Charity is seeking to cover a multitude of sins, it seems. For it is that Rockefeller or Carnegie can't get a sight of our uncompleted Y. M. C. A. building.

The newspaper men of the city were too considerate for the good of others to take all of the $100,000 county bonds sold last Tuesday; and as they didn't care about being bothered clipping coupons for the next decade from little blocks of $10,000, they just let the whole business go to somebody else. Your average newspaper man is a humanitarian, if he happens—happens, mind you—not to be a millionaire.

Don't hold your head too high in this world, at least until one of the awnings in front of the stores are away, too.

No matter what direction you take in walking over the city, you hear the sweet notes of the robin, the cat bird, and other songsters. All because the law protects those birds, but the pestiferous, outlandish and noisy English sparrow is more in evidence than all the others. Boys, turn your guns on them, but let the other birds alone.

"Monday, a man who had a little 'godan truck' in his buggy, came sailing into town at almost a 2-40 gait, lashing his animal as though he wanted to get to a big fire, first. The poor horse was so lame in one foot that he could hardly get along, and when he was forced to a trot the exertion was so great that he looked as if he wanted to imitate the fabled cow and jump over the moon. When the owner was asked what was the matter with his horse, he stopped long enough to say: "Well, to tell the truth, I don't know what is the matter with him—he just got that way all at once," and he started off as fast as the animal could go, for fear that some other fellow would beat him to a customer who might buy a nickels worth of onions, if nothing else. Trot out your "Society for the Prevention," etc.

The flower plants about the front of the Baptist church will soon look beautiful. A variety of plants have been put out this week, and the sunshine that will be promised by the weather clerk will soon bring out all their beauty. There is to be no more danger of depredations by crows being driven through the streets, as the chief of police has promised perfect protection, so let all those that can beautify their homes by cultivating flowers.

The flouring mills seem to be cleaning up and getting ready for the coming crop of wheat. From the present condition of the wheat market, the man that has a good crop this year will get a round price for it. The daily papers say that if the European crop should be short this year, American wheat will be worth $1.25. Things seem to be coming the farmers way again.

W. L. WHITESIDES

Is Badly Used Up By Men Who Attacked Him At Night.

Beset On The Street And Cut, Battered And Bruised.

The Courier Journal of Tuesday says: "When W. L. Whitesides, foreman for the printing establishment of J. P. Merton & Co., passed the mouth of the alley on Second street, between Market and Jefferson streets, last night, he was assaulted so brutally by four men that he is in a serious condition at his home, 2426 Portland avenue. He passed the mouth of the alley with his hands in his pockets, not at all suspecting violence. Just as he reached the middle of the alleyway four men jumped out from the shadow and, while three of the men attempted to grasp his arms, the fourth struck him on the head with a pair of brass knuckles.

The blow almost knocked Mr. Whitesides unconscious. He staggered backward and the assailants evidently believed that he was 'all in.' They released their grasp on his arms and as they did so Mr. Whitesides, recovering himself from the shock of the blow, to a degree, struck one of them full in the face. This seemed to be the signal for another onslaught. Though Mr. Whitesides fought gamely he was unable to hold his own against four men and gradually weakened. The man with the brass knuckles again struck him over the head. One of the other men wrenched his arm so badly that his shoulder was dislocated. Mr. Whitesides sank to the ground. Just before he lapsed into semi-consciousness he saw the men dash up the alley and disappear before assistance could reach him."

In a statement to the press Mr. Whitesides said he did not know the men and attributes the assault to the labor troubles in the Morton plant, as he is a non-union man. Mr. Whitesides was foreman of this office for four years.

CALLED THE BLUFF.

Detectives Returned Alive From Trigg and Caldwell.

Detectives T. J. Cundiff and T. B. Pedigo invaded the "burned district" Tuesday in search of evidence against the "night riders." Marshal Cundiff spent the day in Cadiz in consultation with some of the victims of the barn-burners. He reports that he was courteously treated and despite the recent loud threats about using for "soap grease" detectives who dared come into Trigg county, he was offered no violence, and many of the good citizens of Cadiz gave him to understand that they were not in sympathy with night raiding. He will go back to Cadiz and make further efforts to ferret out some of the guilty parties.

The same day Detective Pedigo went to Princeton and encountered no show of hostility, although he had been warned not to come into that part of the country.

MARSHAL'S DEPUTY

Makes a Visit to Cadiz On Important Business.

Mr. J. S. Shallcross, of Louisville, passed through the city Tuesday going and returning from Cadiz on business connected with Fire Marshal's office. He was most favorably impressed with the people of Cadiz, whom he found to be anything else but bloodthirsty cannibals ready to eat alive any stranger who comes into Trigg county. The fact is, the good people of Cadiz and Trigg county are getting tired of the lawlessness that makes necessary the visits of officers of the law.

Press Comments.

It is a hard matter to decide which is the greatest disgrace to the state, the Mountain county feudists, the Hergia gang of assassins or the night riders of the dark tobacco district. They each alone would be load enough for the state, but the whole three become a burden sufficient to "break the camel's back." Perhaps there has been too much toleration on the part of the authorities, to put it in its mildest form. Action of a most decisive kind seems timely. The state's augural stable of disgraces need cleaning.—Paducah News Democrat.

Night riders are still doing their devilish work in Trigg and Christian counties, Ky., to the utter disgrace of their section and of the State of Kentucky. The devilism is not confined to any one class of people, but is inflicted on farmers both in and out of the association, showing that the spirit of retaliation is abroad in its worst form. All good men must join in putting down this lawlessness. It must be squelched.—Fulton Commercial.

The Sun is with the Organized Farmers in the fight against the Tobacco Trust, but against the night riders in the destruction of property. The Sun is also with organized labor in the fight against organized capital, but against the lawless element on either side that attempts to coerce into submission through intimidation, incendiarism or murder. Force, except when administered by constituted government, has no place in this land of the free and home of the brave, and is more culpable when deliberately planned by capital than when attempted by some over-enthusiastic and misguided advocate of labor.—Morganfield Sun.

The night riders are doing the cause of the tobacco association no good in Caldwell and Trigg counties. They may spread temporary terror, but in the end many of the perpetrators will land in the pen, and the prejudice they create will live after their depredations have ceased.—Henderson Gleaner.
